

WRMR RADIO

Donald: Hey Mac, I'm hungry! How about you?

Mac: I'm starving, Donald. Why don't we find a place at the next exit?

Donald: Sounds good to me. Hey, our names, Mac and Donald, remind me; I was reading recently about a person named MacDonald, Margaret MacDonald.

Mac: Don, I'm so hungry, I can almost envision giant, flying french fries. Who's this, uh, Margaret MacDonald anyway?

Donald: She was a 15-year-old girl in Scotland who went into a trance or vision. In her trance, she saw the saints of the Lord lifted off the earth, sort of like your flying french fries. The vision caused a theory to spread as truth: it's called "The Rapture." People zinging off the earth! What a deception and lie. The "big lift off" didn't happen in the 1800's (in MacDonald's time) and it's not going to happen now! Some false teachers preach that the "Rapture" doctrine was taught by others before her vision, but the early church did not. Frankly, this is all unimportant to me.

Mac: Well, why do you say that?

Donald: Because it's ridiculous and Satan's greatest lie, and I can tell you why....

Mac: I don't want to talk about it. You believe your way, and I'll believe mine. I'm turning the radio on.

Rapture the Rapture

Doc: This is WRMR talk radio, Where the Rubber Meets the Road, broadcasting from Nowhere, Tennessee. We are broadcasting from 888 on your dial. This is your host, Doc Jasper Ument, along with Larry Pharisee. Good morning, Larry. What's up for today?

Larry: And good morning to you, Doc, and all you folks in Raptureland. Today we are going to talk about that great event in the sky that we all look forward to, the Catching Away, yes, "Caught Up", into the sweet by and by. I chose this topic because I recently had a dream that none other than Charlie Looseliver went up in the clouds. And it is a true dream!

Doc: Charlie Looseliver! You've got to be kidding! Tell me what happened.

Larry: Well, Charlie shot up towards heaven. But within a short time I saw him falling and he didn't have a parachute. He went splat. I ran over to him to see what happened. I said, "Charlie, why did you come back?" He replied, "I went too early. The sign I read in heaven said, 'Post trib'."

Doc: Okay, Larry. It sounds like Charlie was ruptured, and you, too, with that wacky dream.

Larry: Watch your tongue, Doc. Now back to today's topic, The Rapture. Please call in at 1-800-FLY-AWAY or 1-800-359-2929.

1-800-NO-WHERE

Doc: This topic has been so controversial that it has even affected some marriages. With us in the studio today are husband and wife, Hecter and Haley Hooch. Hecter's quite concerned that his wife, Haley, believes in the rapture. What's the problem, Hecter?

Hecter: Well, every night my wife sleeps with her makeup and lipstick on and wearing satin slacks.

Larry: Is this true, Haley?

Haley: Yes, it is, Larry. You see, Hec knows that I don't go anywhere without my makeup on. And if the Lord comes in the middle of the night to rapture us, I want to be fully dressed, and ready.

Larry: Yeah, Ready to Rapture!

Hecter: She always wears the same red slacks to bed. She could at least wear a nightgown sometimes, but nooo!

Doc: Why is that, Haley?

Haley: Well, I'm not stupid, Doc. I don't want to be in nightwear when I'm caught up. Would any woman?

Larry: She does have a point, Hecter.

Hecter: But isn't the true Christian garmented with righteousness and praise? "The bride has made herself ready" is not about a white bridal dress made of silk or red slacks.

Doc: That's true. Haley, what's your response to that?

Haley: I agree, but it is going to be sudden; that's why I always want to be ready. I installed an elaborate alarm system in my attic with these extra powerful speakers so that when I fly through the roof, the alarm will sound. I want my neighbors to know. It's my Christian duty to alarm everybody in my city. They'll see it. I even got this huge sunroof in our Hummer and drive with it open so I won't hurt my head by going through the roof if I am riding when the rapture comes.

Hecter: She wanted me to put tear away shingles on the house roof. When she told me that, I nearly went through the roof myself. It's not just that, Larry and Doc, she even wants to give our Hummer away.

Haley: That's right! Why do I need a Hummer if I'm going to fly away?

Larry: That reminds me of a song, "I'll fly away, oh glory". A true song. Truth.

Hecter: Oh jeepers! You are crazy! The only song I'm singing is "I'm here to stay, oh glory, and that Hummer is staying with me". And, to back me up, read Isaiah 45:18 where it says the Lord created the earth to be inhabited. And check Psalms 37.

Doc: Well, there you have it, folks! Now let's open up our phone lines and see what our listeners have to say about this topic. But first a word from our sponsor.
